

atoon of the Drake
ttn. R.N.D. in a sunken id in '15, ready to go
ward to the Helles
nches.

G. A. Suter

After nineteen years,
Mr. R. D. Blackburn
locates his old dug-out on the Peninsula.

Anzac Cove to-day, the bes cliffs overgrown with scrub board bears the name "AN tourists may know the plac

Captain H.
Australian Li
unexploded s old front line

Below, Anzac Cove as it w 1915—dug-outs, ammuni
stores and general activity.

The village of Sedd-el-Bahr to-day, where the French elephant-iron roofing is appreciated by Turkish peasants. A new mosque and minaret are conspicuous among the old battered dwellings.